

HOORAY HURRAH

To coincide with the reopening of Leeds Art Gallery, Leeds based illustration/design/art/craft collective Hooray Hurrah will take up residence at the gallery with the aim of producing a large scale, wall based installation that will give the public an insight into the practical working relationship between the artists, and a glimpse into the often private workings of an illustrator/artist.

As a starting point of this project Hooray Hurrah have been asked to respond to two images, taken by Peter Mitchell, of the Quarry Hill area of the city installed in the space.

In addition to this other elements will also be introduced into the space which will require some degree of audience interaction and participation in order to influence the artwork. This Cut Out and Make Birdbox is one of them.

Cut-out and glue together the tiny birdbox.

Fill/customise it any way you see fit.

Leave/return it to Leeds Art Gallery for it to become part of the ongoing artwork
